COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 1.

THE re-opening of business at home has brought us the usual full complement of telegraphic information to-day, but it cannot be regarded as particularly encouraging in tone. Consols are quoted at 102⅛, having recovered the previous day's decline of ⅛. French Rentes are unchanged at 116½, and the Indian 3½ per cent. Sterling Loan is again quoted at the reduced figure of 101¾. Rupee Paper, however, owing no doubt to the recent drop on this side, has declined 9-16 in Fours and 3-16 in Fours-and-a-half, which stand at 84¾ and 91½ respectively. Indian Exchange Bank shares are all unmoved.

It is in the Produce Markets, however, that the most adverse state of things is reported. The only actual movement noticed by Reuter is a decline in Bombay Linseed of 6d. per quarter on the spot and 1s. to arrive, but private messages report an equally depressed state of matters in Wheat and other leading articles of export from this side. It is daily becoming more evident, in fact, that not only does the exceptional state of things which afforded so much inducement last year for an extended trade in Wheat and Seeds not now exist, but the position is in a great measure reversed by the promising character of the harvests in Europe and America, and it remains to be seen how far our exports can be maintained under these altered circumstances. The unusually low level of homeward freights may for a time afford the stimulus of which the home markets are devoid, but this cannot last beyond the next few weeks, and a fair test will then be afforded as to how far India is likely to become a permanent source of wheat supplies at a moderate level of prices.

No change is reported in Piece-goods in Manchester, and from Liverpool Reuter reports the Cotton market firm at unchanged prices; the day's sales being estimated at 15,000 bales, of which 2,000 were Surats. Private messages, however, are less hopeful in tone, Americans being called weak, Surats only barely steady. Even this, however, is better than we shall probably have to-morrow morning with quotations from New York down 1-16 cent. for ready and 12 points for August shipment, in addition to the week's receipts from here being telegraphed at 83,000 bales. The American figures for the current week so far are :—

For the five days	9,000	22,100	15,800

EXCHANGE.—The market for Sterling opened quiet at yesterday's rates, but during the day it became evident that, notwithstanding the fact of the Government minimum on Council drafts having been fixed at 1s. 8 1-16d., the position was weak and buyers came out at a reduction of 1-32d. This brought out a certain amount of paper, but in the aggregate transactions do not sum up a very large amount, and we close quiet at the decline. It is daily becoming more evident that our export trade is rapidly contracting, and the small sales of Council drafts now being effected can only mean an increased amount later on when possibly the demand may be less equal to absorbing them. We quote :—

Bank Bills on demand		1s. 8 3-32d.	per Rupee
Do.	telegraphic	1s. 8 1-16d.	,,
Do.	4 months' sight	1s. 8 9-32d.	,,
Credits	3 ,, ,,	1s. 8 5-16d.	,,
Documents	3 ,, ,,	1s. 8 11-32d.	,,
France	3 ,, ,,	2¼	,,

On Calcutta demand is the turn firmer at 3-32 to ¼ per cent. premium, 60 days' sight 9-16 per cent. discount.

GOVERNMENT PAPER to-day has again been dull in the extreme, and scarcely any business of importance has transpired. Fours opened nominally at Rs. 101⅛, but finding no buyers, receded to Rs. 101⅛. Fours-and-a-half are nominal at Rs. 103¾.

SHARES.—The market all round keeps firm and any changes noted in our list are in favour of sellers. Bank of Bombays are again ¼ per cent. better at Rs. 790. In Land Companies there is no change. Spinning and Weaving Mill shares are firm, and we quote an advance of Rs. 5 in Coorla, Dharumsey, Khutao Muckonjee, Great Eastern, and Southern India, whilst in Alliance the improvement is Rs. 10. Press Companies continue strong, and there is an advance of Rs. 2½ in East Indian, Rs. 10 in Berar, Rs. 5 in Apollo, and Rs. 20 in French Press. Bombay Saw-mills are Rs. 5, Bombay-Burmah Trading Rs. 25 per share higher.

COTTON has been comparatively active to-day. Holders have not been specially willing sellers; but shippers, with the view of closing off their season's shipments, have paid full rates and about 5,000 bales have changed hands. Rates cannot be quoted higher than yesterday, but the market is really stronger; in fact, to-day's buying may be taken as probably the last important day of the season.

WHEAT.—The export demand is still maintained by the depressed state of freights, and prices in consequence are not appreciably lower. Directly, however, present charters are covered rates are almost bound to give way, as home reports are distinctly adverse. For No. 1 soft white we quote Rs 3-2½ to Rs. 33 per candy.

LINSEED is dull with few buyers at Rs. 5-8 per cwt., arrivals in the meantime keeping fairly well up.

FREIGHTS to-day have undergone quite a collapse. For Liverpool vid Canal 30s. was still asked to begin with, but an hourly decline of 1s. 3d. per ton took place until at the close 25s. was available and no amount of cargo offering. For other ports an equivalent decline has taken place, and it seems as if the market must go still lower before any recovery takes place. Cape freights are equally dull at 40s. for wood and 42s. 6d. to 45s. for iron ships.

IMPORTS remain as before, depressed and difficult to move. A favourable setting in of the monsoon may bring about a better demand, but in the meantime there seems nothing else on which to build hopes of an improvement.

...KER AND Co., Limited, will, we ...dividend of 15 per cent for the past ...

We are glad to see that the cholera mortality ... for the week ended on the 30th May was ...ain blank. There has not been a single death from cholera in Bombay for more than a month, an unusual freedom from the disease at this time of year. During the week of last year corresponding with that ending on Tuesday last there were 34 deaths from cholera, and the average number of deaths from this disease in the corresponding weeks of the last five years has been 38 per week.

CHOLERA, we regret to see, continues to cause a great many deaths in the Satara and Belgaum districts. In the former collectorate there were 184 deaths and 468 cases reported during the week ended on the 24th May; and in Belgaum there were 213 deaths in the same period. The disease is also prevalent, though to a very much less degree, in the Wadhwan, Rajkot, Dharwar, and Ahmedabad districts. In Wadhwan there were 48 cases and 27 deaths reported; for Nowanagar taluka and for Rajkot district there were 20 cases and 10 deaths; and in Dharwar (at a village of the Karajgi taluka) there were 15 cases and 5 deaths. From Ahmedabad it is reported that there is slight cholera in the Viramgam taluka, but no figures are given.

A NOTIFICATION was issued as a Bombay Government Gazette Extraordinary yesterday, to the effect that the Code of Civil Procedure has been extended to the Province of Sind.

CAPTAIN BRENT, R. N., Director of the Indian Marine, has been appointed a member of the Bombay Port Trust.

MR. H. M. BIRDWOOD has been appointed a Lieutenant in the Sind Volunteer Rifle Corps.

IT is notified in the Bombay Government Gazette that Mr. J. N. Graham has resigned his seat as an Additional Member of the Bombay Legislative Council.

THE official date for the re-assembling of the Bombay Government at Poona is the 10th June.

THE provisions of the Bombay Steam Boilers Inspection Act have been extended to the towns of Kurrachee and Kotree in Sind.

THE Sind Frontier Police are to be reorganised, and Mr. H. N. Alexander will be entrusted with the duty.

THE Archbishop of Goa has announced his intention of establishing at his own expense a primary school for the poor children at Pangim.

FROM the report of the Land Trade of British India, it seems that Indian tea still makes but little way in Afghanistan and the Khanates. The value of such tea exported to Kabul from April to December, 1881, was only Rs. 1,69,000, or Rs. 35,000 less than in 1880; whereas of "foreign" tea, which is chiefly green tea from China, 10,508 cwt. left the Punjab for Kabul, the value being estimated at nearly Rs. 16,00,000. The export, in 1881, of jade from Upper Burmah to British Burmah was abnormally great. The value of the stone exported is usually under two lakhs per annum, but in the nine months under review it nearly reached seven lakhs.

THE Government of India evince a strong desire to make the burdens on the ryot as easy as possible, and so encourage improvements in agriculture, by their memorandum of the 3rd May, containing instructions to the Agricultural Department with reference to the collection of land revenue. What is aimed at is the establishment of "a closer connection between current liabilities and current assets," Government justly considering that "the arrangement of revenue instalments most convenient to a large proportion of the tenantry is that which, by requiring payment when they have most cash in hand, allows them the amplest facilities for escape from the money-lender, and the readiest means of avoiding the payment of heavy interest." The Government further remark:—"Where the collection of rent and revenue is, in any large section of a province, made on one or two uniform dates, it will be at those periods necessarily stimulate, amongst the agricultural community, a large and unavoidable demand for cash. Prices will therefore tend to fall in consequence of the withdrawal of silver; the rate of interest will rise; grain has to be thrown into a slackened market, and loans must be negotiated on usurious terms. It is thus obvious that by adjusting the demand of the State to the different circumstances of villages or tracts, and by introducing into the distribution of payments on account of revenue and rent as great a variety as is consistent with agricultural welfare, the money market may be relieved, in an appreciable degree, of the pressure which is now of periodical occurrence." The local Government and the officials responsible for the collection of land revenue are requested to direct their attention to these points, and specimen rules for fixing instalments of rent and revenue have been circulated for the guidance of officers concerned.

KHAKI clothing was to be taken into wear by British troops serving in the Allahabad division from the 1st of June. The particular shade of khaki to be worn in place of white has been approved of by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and a "sealed pattern" forwarded for the guidance of all concerned. It is rather of a darker colour or shade than that usually worn, and when made up new will have a very neat appearance, but it is to be feared that after a washing or so the colour will lose its present shade and become of many. The Pioneer thinks it must have been overlooked that white clothing can be prepared for service by being dyed khaki in 24 hours. This country has never as yet produced a fast dye of this colour, and it is very doubtful whether such can be obtained, except from England, which would make the clothing very expensive, and make it hard for the pocket of the soldier, on whom the expense falls.

THE command of the 40th Regiment Native Infantry, now vacant owing to Colonel Dandridge's succession to a brigade command, is to go to the Second-in-Command, Lieutenant-Colonel Morton, who, out of a service of 26½ years, has been with the regiment near 24 years. He joined it in August, 1858, having entered the service in December, 1855, and since April, 1876, has held his present substantive appointment. He will hold the command till 1889, coming into his off-reckonings in December, 1893. He will, however, reach the age of 55 in May, 1890. Colonel Morton is at present on furlough for 1 year 6 months and 73 days from 8th January, 1881.

MR. C. T. BUCKLAND has begun in the Army and Navy Magazine a series of papers on "Social Life in Bengal," which, a home paper says, promise to be not more readable than instructive, if the writer keeps up to his present mark.

MR. JOSEPH WHITWELL PEASE, who is one of the new batch of baronets, will be the first Quaker known to have accepted such a title.

THE conquest of the Akhal Tekke Turkoman region, according to Skobeleff, cost Russia £3,000,000 sterling. This was not a bad investment, if the statement be true which was made by General Annenkoff at a meeting of the Russian Imperial Geographical Society last week. Describing recent discoveries there, he said "that a hill of naphtha and ozokerit" has been found close to one of the stations on the Transcaspian railway, valued by experts from Baku at upwards of 32 millions sterling.

AT Bow-street David William Blackburn, aged twenty, giving an address in Albemarle-street, Piccadilly, and describing himself as a lieutenant of the 3rd Cameronians, a militia regiment quartered at Edinburgh, was charged with having wantonly discharged a revolver on the Thames Embankment. About four o'clock in the morning a mounted policeman heard the report of firearms while patrolling the Embankment; and he saw a smoke issuing from a cab which was coming towards him from Northumberland-avenue. As the cab approached the policeman the prisoner presented a revolver at him, but did not fire. When the cab had proceeded about sixty yards, however, there was another report. The policeman overtook the cab and arrested the occupant, who said he had only fired at Cleopatra's Needle. One of the chambers of the revolver was found to be loaded with ball cartridge. Mr. William Doveton Smyth, on behalf of the prisoner, expressed his regret for what had occurred. The prisoner had been guilty of foolish conduct, but had no intention to do wrong. The prisoner was remanded.

LORD SPENCER and Mr. Trevelyan, the new Lord Lieutenant and Chief Secretary of Ireland respectively, are both old Harrovians. When the boys at Harrow School assembled in the Speech Room as usual on May 11, the headmaster said to them: "You will have noticed that during the last few days the two chief offices in the Government of Ireland have been entrusted to Harrow men—Lord Spencer, one of our governors, and Mr. George Trevelyan, who was head of the school twenty-five years ago. I could not name any old Harrovians who have retained more warmly and more freshly their affection for the school. At this time it is but too clear that the post of honour is also the post of danger; and though no Englishman will think twice about danger when called to serve the State, yet the knowledge that danger exists may well quicken the sympathy and regard of friends. Public men are cheered by private sympathy; and I should like to think that our distinguished schoolfellows might feel at times, in moments of anxiety, that they could count on your kindly good wishes, and, indeed, on those of all old Harrovians throughout the country without distinction of party, and on your hope that they discharge their grave duties with safety and honour to themselves and also with safety and honour to the Empire."

THE London Spectator thus summarises from the Nineteenth Century a resumé of the results of all the measures passed during the last eighty years for the suppression of trial by jury in Ireland—an experiment now spoken of as something quite new and certain to succeed as a matter of course: "A paper of first-class interest is Mr. Leadam's plea for juries in Ireland, a most remarkable array of evidence to prove that Acts for suspending juries always fail, the people believing that they are sentenced by mere violence, and holding the special tribunals much worse than courts-martial. They regard sentences under the latter as acts of war, to be accepted like those passed in war. The writer maintains that the forms of law should be observed in any case, and that trial by special commission should be with a jury, made, we may presume, special too."

THE World:—In October last, commenting on the imprisonment of Messrs. Parnell, Dillon, and O'Kelly in Kilmainham, we said that one of the results of the suppression of the political activity of the leaders of the Land League would be the development of the secret societies, and the commencement of an era of political assassination. The reason was obvious. There have been occasions on which it suited the Fenian and Ribbon organisers to co-operate with the Land League. But the Fenian chiefs have always been jealous of the authority of Mr. Parnell, and have long sought an opportunity of supersiding him. He has been useful to them up to a certain point; he has played their game, so far as he has prepared the way for political revolution. But now his work is done. He is a man to be got rid of—an instrument which, having performed its duty, can be placed contemptuously on one side. Six months have sufficed completely to change the situation in Ireland. Last autumn the Land League controlled the people; now it is effete and impotent. It was responsible for hundreds of outrages, and a liberal allowance of agrarian murders. But its prophets did not, in public or in private, insist upon the sacred duty of assassination. Murder is the natural method of secret societies all the world over. Lord Beaconsfield, who possessed the peculiar Hebraic faculty of divination, declared, towards the end of his life, that the one thing which he really dreaded in Ireland was political murder. His worst fears are now realised. The secret societies have proclaimed political war against the English Government.

THE following anecdotes are related apropos of Royal Weddings. During the marriage ceremony at Windsor when Prince Leopold and the Princess Helen were made one, the Queen happened to look up at the Knights' banners, and, to her amazement and indignation, she discovered several opera-glasses peering from behind them, all pointed straight at her. An inquiry was speedily made, when it turned out that a permanent Court official at Windsor had secretly constructed a small gallery up behind the Knights' Stalls, from which, after reaching it by the aid of a perpendicular ladder, his friends had an excellent view, perched up like owls in an ivy-bush. The Lord Chamberlain and the Lord Steward, supported by a posse of their subordinates, very promptly summoned the erring official before them, and after putting several questions to him, ordered him to go up for sentence to the London office of the Board of Works. After a very humble apology, however, he was let off with a severe reprimand. At the Duke of Connaught's wedding, a special correspondent of one of the London daily papers—a gentleman well known on the Metropolitan Press—being desirous of "doing" the State Banquet for the journal he represented, prevailed upon a Castle official to smuggle him into the banqueting-hall, so that he might have a good view of everything which was going on, and hear all that was said, and not be seen himself, as no Press invitations were issued on such an occasion. This gentleman managed to get up into the organ-loft just behind the Royal Arms, and he peeped down on all below occasionally from between the lions' two fore-feet. This suited him admirably, and he went on scribbling away leaf after leaf, with his hat on his knees, using the crown of it for his desk. By some sudden movement, however, he dropped his silver pencil-case, which went straight down on to the table where the guests were enjoying themselves, and fell plump into a tureen of soup, close to the elbow of the Duke of Edinburgh, with a loud splash. There was some little commotion at the time, but no further notice was taken of the matter, and the soup was in due course soon afterwards removed. Whether the servants ever discovered the silver pencil-case in the tureen is not on record; but the fact may be stated that the journal which this special correspondent represented was the only one of the London dailies which gave a full account of the State Banquet on that eventful occasion, and everybody wondered how they got their report, for it was not stated at the time that the notes were taken surreptitiously from a perch in the organ-loft.

APPROACH OF THE MONSOON.

THE storm on Wednesday evening swamped four prows in Bombay harbour. Three of the boats were laden with bales of cotton, and a great portion of the cargoes has been recovered, a large number of bales having been thrown ashore on Cross Island. One prow laden with coal went down near the entrance to Prince's Dock. No lives were lost in either case. Considering the force of the wind, it is somewhat strange that only one or two trifling accidents occurred in the city. A good many tiles were blown off the roofs of houses, and some balconies were almost denuded of their flower-pots. The gale overturned a carriage at the Apollo-bunder, and the huge clouds of dust frightened most of the horses that were exposed to them. Such a heavy dust-storm has hardly ever been seen in Bombay. As the wind came rushing in from the sea it ploughed up the dust and whirled it high into the air, where it formed immense clouds that increased in size and density as they passed swiftly over the city. In the face of such a blinding storm of dust one could hardly open one's eyes; at any rate the clouds were so dense that it was barely possible to see across a street. The dust-storm only lasted a few minutes and was immediately followed by a heavy storm of rain. Yesterday a very strong southerly wind was blowing, and the harbour presented quite a monsoon appearance. A high sea was running, and the water was as muddy as it is in the monsoon. The sea was so rough, indeed, that the passengers by the mail-steamer which arrived in the harbour yesterday afternoon from Australia did not come ashore. The sky was very cloudy last evening, and strong gusts of wind were frequent.

YESTERDAY'S telegraphic report from the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India (Simla) states:—The barometer has risen considerably on the plains of the Punjab and the Ganges Valley, and in Rajputana, the Berars, and the Central Provinces, but not on the hills, nor in Bengal or Burmah, where the pressure is lower. Excepting Cochin, Mercara, and Vizagapatam no reports have been received from Southern India. Easterly winds blow up the Gangetic plain, and the Punjab up to Lahore, and S. W. winds prevail in the Central Provinces, Berar, and Guzerat. The temperature is still falling in the Punjab and the North-West, especially the latter; also in the Central Provinces and Berar. The air is moister, with more clouds. A little rain has fallen at Delhi, Meerut, and Bareilly, at the two latter places above half an inch. Similar amounts have been registered at Vizagapatam and Rangoon, but no heavy rain is mentioned in the reports received to-day.

A CORRESPONDENT writes from Nasik, 31st May:—"A thunderstorm began at 6 p. m., and as I write at 7-45 p. m., it is thundering over-head. We have had a heavy shower of rain."

ANOTHER Nasick correspondent, writing on the same day, says:—"We have had a heavy fall of rain this evening at Nasick, and the surrounding villages, with a great thunder-storm."

THE WEATHER AT POONA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, MAY 30.

As people in Bombay are evidently much interested in the monsoon, you will be pleased to hear that Poona is showing decided signs of a speedy change of season. On Sunday evening there was a terrific thunder-storm, and on Monday evening there was one of equal violence. Each lasted upwards of an hour, the rain fell in torrents, and the wind blew with such violence as to work considerable mischief among trees and gardens. This (Tuesday) evening there is thunder and lightning, but not severe, and the rain is holding off. Everything points to an early monsoon.

STORM AT POONA.—A terrific storm burst over the station yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon which lasted for about three quarters of an hour. So violent was the wind blowing that to move out of doors was not only suffocating, but blinding, in consequence of the dust that was disturbed on the streets and road-sides. The skies darkened, betokening a heavy fall of rain, and although we had enough of thunder and lightning, there was only a slight drizzle by way of accompaniment. The weather was delightful towards evening.—Deccan Herald.

The Cochin Argus has made up its mind that the pucca S. W. monsoon set in with the storm of the 18th May, though "the rainfall up to this has been very scanty, and we have not had the usual heavy squalls." In its issue of the 27th May we read:—"We were not deceived, and what we should be making a premature announcement if we stated that the south-west monsoon had set in, but we think that there can be no doubt now that the cold season has commenced, although the rainfall has up to this been very scanty and we have not had the usual heavy squalls from the south-west. We hear from Alwaye that with the setting in of the monsoon the freshets came down, but after a couple of days' sunshine the flood subsided and the water is as clear and fit for bathing as it was before the setting in of the monsoon."

Heavy rain has fallen at Karwar, and the barometric gradient between Bombay and Mangalore is unusually steep, a condition which results not so much from a slight fall of the barometer at Bombay as from a very unusual rise at Mangalore. The weather is such as is usually experienced at the commencement of the monsoon.

ALLEGED MUTINY ON THE HIGH SEAS.

GEORGE DOWDY, Thomas Butler, and Edward Bascon, seamen of the British ship William D. Lawrence, were charged on remand before Mr. P. Ryan, at the Fort Police Court, yesterday, with assaulting Mr. S. Carlton, third officer of that vessel, on the high seas.

Mr. Crawford (Crawford and Boevey) appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. De Souza for the defence.

George Ellis, second mate, deposed that prisoner No. 3 said that he would take his time about attending to his work. The ship was in danger, and he would swear that he saw land. On the 10th April she was somewhere near or off the Cape. Witness continued:—I was in my cabin, but hearing a noise, I came out and saw prisoner No. 1 on top of the third officer, and beating him. I rescued the third mate, after which I sang out, "All hands," and returned to my cabin and fetched my revolver. After I separated them I thought all was right. I saw Thomas Butler go forward, but cannot say if I cannot swear. A man cannot say he saw all the crew, as it was dark. Thomas Butler had a capstan bar in his hand. I can swear to that. When I fetched my revolver, the chief officer was not there, and I did not call for him, as I did not know where he was. I was justified in using a revolver, as an officer is supposed to defend himself. I was never in court before, never fined. I never abused the men, calling them rascals, &c. I did not threaten to shoot any one. I told them to stand back, and laid by my revolver in my room. Edward Bascon ran up to join again. I heard a cry and ran forward. I found the third officer lying across a square timber on the main deck.

David Douglas, chief officer, deposed.—When the watch were called up to "tack ship" they delayed 15 to 20 minutes, and only answered to a second call. All the ship was round. When the crew were questioned, one of them told the captain "not to make such a d—— noise about it." The ship was close in to the land. On the 11th April, at 2 a.m., I was on the after-house on the deck. Prisoner No. 3 was on the main deck. When the captain sung out again, one man came out—Thomas Blake. A few minutes after prisoner No. 1 came out. They held the log. When asked why he had not come out, prisoner No. 1 said he had not heard the order. He passed down on to the main deck, when I heard a noise and then blows struck. I ran to the forward part of the house and saw some of the watch running aft. I cannot say how many. I went down by the ladder to the main deck. I heard some shots fired. The third mate was lying on deck when I went forward. He was insensible and badly bruised, and had three cuts on his head and one across his eye. I did not see who struck him. The second officer was there, trying to get him away to the cabin. I saw three or four men; prisoner No. 3 and some others of the crew, but don't know who the rest were. The row commenced, but heard the shots about five minutes after the loud talking. I heard more than one shot, for I am certain I heard two.

Cross-examined by Mr. DeSouza.—I saw Edward Bascon with a belaying pin in his hand; he called out, "Look out" in a threatening manner. He aimed at the second officer. The rest had capstan bars, I could not say who. I did not see Dowdy when they were called out at first to "heave the log;" but the second time he came up, and when questioned said he was dressing, and when I told him to go along he walked off to the poop. The mate was cut badly. I shaved his head, and the cut healed; it was a long time ago. We left Liverpool on the 24th January. When we took up the prisoners Nos. 1, 2, and 3, they behaved well. Dowdy's conduct on board was good, and he was attentive to his duties. Butler was shipped as a common sailor, but was found unfit. I have nothing to say against Bascon.

Re-examined by Mr. Crawford.—The conduct of prisoner No. 1 was not good on the occasion. Nos. 2 and 3 did not come on deck in answer to the call.

Cross-examined by Mr. DeSouza.—Dowdy's eye was cut, and the captain attended to him. He came to me, but I could not attend to him.

Jas. Newborn, steward, deposed.—I was called up by the second mate, who told me that the third mate was being murdered. I went on deck, and a little while after saw some men coming up. The third mate was standing close to the cabin door, leaning against it. He was insensible when brought into the cabin. He was like one gone out of his mind, and was all smashed up. He complained of his body and head. He had three cuts on his head. I heard a shot before I came up. We attended to the wounded man, and gave him medicine, and he came round about a quarter of an hour afterwards of an hour, the rain fell in torrents, and the wind blew with such violence as to work considerable mischief among trees and gardens. This (Tuesday) evening there is thunder and lightning, but not severe, and the rain is holding off. Everything points to an early monsoon.

Henry Turner, witness for the defence, deposed.—I am an able seaman of the William D. Lawrence. We were called to tack ship on the 10th April. The captain gave the order. Our watch was ready, but the other watch were about ten minutes late. On the morning of the 11th April there was a disturbance. I was in the middle watch at midship from 12 to 4 a.m. All hands were making on to "heave the log." I was in company with Jim Butler, prisoner No. 2, amidship. Dowdy was not with us, but he passed me to heave the log. He came from forward. His name was called by the third mate why he was late, and where he was when he (the mate) sang out to heave the log. He replied, "On the deck." Dowdy in reply asked the mate if he was called in particular. As they were talking loud, I went up to them, and then I heard the third mate use indecent language, and saw him strike Dowdy on the face. Dowdy put his hands up. The third mate was the aggressor. The second mate, who had nothing to do with our watch, rushed out and struck Dowdy several times with a belaying pin. The second mate separated Dowdy and the third mate. The second mate then took him aft, and singing out, "Get back," struck Butler, who was coming to the place of the scuffle. As soon as Butler was struck he unshipped a capstan bar; the third mate then sang out, "Shoot the black ——." On hearing this all hands ran forward. I and another man did not run forward. When I saw the chief officer come down from the poop, I made him understand I had nothing to do with the row. I went to the starboard side of the ship, when the second mate came up to me and said, "Get back, you ——, I'll shoot every black ——among you." At the same time he fired. I sought protection, as I was scared at the noise. Then the second mate came to the opposite side and fired. Butler was the only one exposed to the shot, on the left hand side of the ship looking forward, and Alexander in the middle. I was on the right hand side. The second mate was about 6 feet from where he fired, and shot Butler down. I can't say whom he aimed at. Butler then cried out, "Oh Lord, I am shot." Alexander and I carried Butler in. While there, another shot was fired, and struck the door. I came out and saw the second mate bringing the insensible form of the third mate aft, after which I went back to my room.

The jurisdiction of the court was here questioned by Mr. DeSouza, but the magistrate stated he had full power by Act No 1 of 1859 to punish, fine, or imprison any officers or men found guilty of offences on the high seas, such jurisdiction was withheld.

Mr. DeSouza, in addressing the court for the defence, said that he considered the prosecution unfair in introducing into the case a charge quite different from the one stated in the charge sheet, and of which the defendants had no notice. He asked the magistrate, therefore, to deal with the case as it was before him. The case before his Worship was one of assault, which the prosecution had endeavoured to magnify and give it more importance than it deserved. There was no doubt that some disturbance had taken place on the night in question, but the authors of it were only the second and third mates, and if the third mate got the worst of the affray he had only to thank himself. What really took place was this. On the night of the 10th of April there were 10 men on the watch, one on the look out, two at the wheel, and seven on deck. At about 2 o'clock the third mate sang out, "Heave the log. The first prisoner, who had gone to the forecastle head, made haste to come down, when he heard the mate sing out a second time. On coming down he met the chief officer, who asked him why he was so long in coming. The man explained to him the circumstances under which he had been absent, and which seemed to satisfy the chief officer. Immediately afterwards he was accosted by the third mate, who addressed him in most annoying language where he had been. Prisoner No. 1 answered as he had done to the chief officer. Upon this hot words ensued, and on the third mate making a blow at him he (prisoner No. 1) guarded off, and then closed in with him.

The court, after reviewing the evidence adduced at some length, gave the following decision:—"After a careful consideration of the evidence, the court is of opinion that Mr. McGill, the chief officer of the s. s. Knight of St. Patrick, who was on watch at the time of the accident, committed an error of judgment in so far that, on sighting the dhow and having misgivings as to whether he could clear her on the course he was steering, he did not at once put his helm hard to port, and promptly, as far as it was practicable, with the rules laid down by the Board of Trade for steering and sailing. He should have recollected that he had the command of the road, and that as his vessel was going at the rate of 9 to 9½ knots per hour, whilst the dhow was probably making about 3 knots, the two vessels thus approaching each other at the rate of 12 to 13 knots an hour, half measures were of no avail, and that prompt and energetic action was necessary, which appear to have been resorted to only when Captain Sheill came on deck. The evidence of the tindal and crew regarding the use of the dhow's lights on board she is most unsatisfactory. The instructions of Government for native craft carrying lights appear to have been quite ignored in this instance. The tindal admits that he had the proper lights on board, but does not appear to have troubled himself about the printed instructions which are issued to native craft when registered. Had he taken the trouble to obtain and study those instructions, and had the dhow's lights been set as ordered, the look-outs on board the steamer would have seen exactly how the dhow was standing, and could have acted with certainty. Article 24 of the Regulations issued by Government very plainly defines the responsibility of owners, masters, and crews of native craft in respect of any neglect to carry the proper lights and signals; and the court now warns the tindal and crew of the dhow of the penalties which they are liable to incur by ignoring at any future time regulations issued in the interests especially of native craft for their better and safe navigation in these seas."

MARINE COURT OF ENQUIRY.

THE Marine Court composed of Mr. W. Webb Acting Chief Presidency Magistrate, and Captain W. T. Crockett, late I. N., Nautical Assessor, reassembled yesterday and delivered its decision in the matter of the collision between the s. s. Knight of St. Patrick and pattamar Abdul Rahaman. The collision occurred on the night of the 14th May last, while off Dhabul, on the Malabar Coast, and the latter vessel foundered.

The court, after reviewing the evidence adduced at some length, gave the following decision:—"After a careful consideration of the evidence, the court is of opinion that Mr. McGill, the chief officer of the s. s. Knight of St. Patrick, who was on watch at the time of the accident, committed an error of judgment in so far that, on sighting the dhow and having misgivings as to whether he could clear her on the course he was steering, he did not at once put his helm hard to port, and promptly, as far as it was practicable, with the rules laid down by the Board of Trade for steering and sailing. he other, the floe closed in again. All day we were in the most serious apprehension, and the Jeannette's fate hung upon a delicate balance indeed. Pressed in the jaws of a vice such as no power created by human agencies could have made, she creaked and groaned in every timber. Only that she had been strengthened by an immense truss those introduction into the ship was the latest bought of her builders, she must have gone to frag ments then. Once a great tongue of ice pressed her gainst the port beam, and we gathered on the deck nd breathlessly awaited the end, which it now eemed could not be delayed. No one can tell how eartily we gave thanks when our noble little vessel esisted the pressure, and the great arm of crystal rumbling into pieces, under-run the ship with a ullen roar that sounded like music to our ears. At uch times as these, and they were not rare, the eck planks would start from their beams, and the astenings would crack like the report of discharg ng rifles. The doors of our state rooms were ecome jammed, so that ingress and egress were impossible. Every man kept his Knapsack eady by him, prepared to leave the vessel at moment's notice. The dogs, too, were kept arnessed, and no precaution that our perilous condition could suggest was neglected. Several gales, ome of them of great violence, added their dangers o our condition. Some of them moved at the rate f fifty miles an hour. The long night began on he 10th of November, 1879, and lasted until the 25th f January, 1880. During that time a regular outine was observed. At seven a.m. all hands were called and the galley fires started; at nine reakfast; from eleven to one, hunting and exerise on the ice; at three p.m., dinner, after which, nd for the purpose of saving coal, the galley fires were put out; between seven and eight, tea, made rom the Baxter condensing boiler, originally intended to run the electric light engine. The light, owever, we found too expensive, and soon abandoned its use. Coal was served out in careful uantities, in all one hundred and forty pounds a day. For the most part we lived upon canned meats and vegetables, with bear or seal meat twice a week, and pork and beans or salt beef once a week. Rum was sparingly served out, on festive occasions nce or twice a year. Thus we spent twenty-one months in the ice pack, man-of-war discipline being always maintained. For the entire time there was ot one punishment, and that for the offence of pro anity. Our amusements were theatricals, study, nd such games as we could have from time to time on the ice.

"In January, 1880, the great strain on the vessel started a leak. The strain she had borne is almost incredible, but when the great pressure attacked her longitudinally, and in her weakest point, the stern, she had to succumb. Directly that this new danger made itself known we got up steam and set the pumps to work without delay. The temperature was then 42° below zero, the freezing point of mercury, and it was with great difficulty the donkey pumps could be kept at work. The men worked with their feet in the freezing water, and in our mutual anxiety we struggled on. The pumps were kept going until June, at which time we found the leak was caused by the wrenching away of the forefoot, making a great aperture. We then built a compartment forward, which stayed the water a good deal. Nevertheless, we kept on pumping for eighteen months without cessation. A windmill pump was tried in summer, but the chill zephyrs were too gentle to lift the freezing water, and keep by its flow the clearing pipes from closing up.

"Our provisions held out very well, and only a few barrels of flour were injured by the water. The coldest weather we had came in February, 1880, when the temperature fell to 58 degrees below zero. After five months of drifting in the pack, we found that in all that time we had moved not more than fifty miles from the point we had been frozen in at first. Perhaps our only discovery of importance during this period was that the hypothesis of Dr. Petermann, in substance that Greenland and Wrangell Land were one and the same country, was not tenable. Indeed, the little movement we made demonstrated the insularity of Wrangell Land almost beyond question, and we were glad later on to prove our conclusions to be correct. There was no game in the spring—neither geese nor ducks—and in March the gales we had expected did not occur. This was a disappointment. We had hoped to have the wind break up the pack and release us. Here we were, however, helpless and useless, fretting over our forced inactivity, and the prospects of release growing day by day less promising. In the summer of 1880, we found ourselves drifting back over the track we had followed in the winter. The prevailing winds blew from the opposite direction, and we felt that, like the unhappy Hans Vanderdecken, of the Flying Dutchman, we must for ever try in vain to escape. We were, however, something further north, and the summer cold was even more terrible to endure than the winter's. The ice seemed to absorb the rays of the sun during the melting period, and the damp and fox struck a chill to the very marrow that makes me shiver now as I think of it. We planned all sorts of expedients for clearing the ship from her prison, and were prepared to take advantage of any opportunity to do so; but, alas! no opportunity came. During the auroras Lieutenant Chipp conducted very interesting electric experiments, by testing the disturbances of the galvanometer. He laid out wires on the ice, and earth plates in the water, and obtained some 2,000 observations. The disturbances of the needle he always found coincident with the most brilliant auroras.

"The first year we got enough of game for table use, and of seal to clothe the crew from their skins But this required a great deal of hunting—more, indeed, than you can imagine. The author of that well named book, 'The Threshold of the Unknown Regions,' has said that this part of the world 'was teeming with animal life.' The statement is open to the boldest criticism. The winter of 1880-81 passed very much as the preceding one had done. Its monotony was something indescribable. Spring found us drifting over the same track again, but the calamity we feared was not to be long delayed. Finally, on the 11th of July, 1881, we forsook the ship. We were not a moment too soon. Dragging our boats to an adjoining icefloe, we saw the Jeannette's last efforts to resist. Slowly her sides gave way, and a towering mass of ice fell over and buried her from sight for ever. After a terrible struggle, suffering hardships of a nature that no human tongue can tell, we reached open water. Then, for one hundred days we continued our journey, keeping our course in the open boats, to the south and west, sometimes dragging them over ice, sometimes wet, always hungry, but still hopeful of reaching land. We had plenty of bad weather. On the night of the 13th of September we had a furious gale, and the three boats became separated. Four days later my boat reached the Siberian Coast. The same day Captain De Long reached the shore. It was a barren harbour. We were without food, and our clothing, worn and tattered, afforded scant protection to the inclement winds that blew with blinding force over the desolate steppes of that inhospitable region. For food we chewed the sealskin of our garments. Our landing was made near the mouth of the Lena. Captain De Long was scarcely so fortunate. Two days had been we afterwards found at Bulun. They reported his having landed, but that he and the eleven men with him when they left had had no food for two days, and could scarcely have survived. We had been found by some natives at a time when we had given up hope.

"Of course, our information with regard to the Polar Seas adds but little to the sum already known. Incapacitated from the first, almost, my observations are not of the value that attaches to Lieutenant Chipp's should they ever be recovered. I understand that De Long's records have been found. They are very full, and will be of great value. Of theories we have an abundance, of course. One is that the Polar region is covered with an immense cap of ice, which has a slow and general movement, like the hands of a watch, the direction of the drift being different, of course, in the several segments. This Polar cap throws off each year millions of acres of ice through the narrow gates of Robeson Channel and the seas between Iceland and Greenland. A branch of the Gulf stream attacks it from the Spitzenbergen side, whose influence extends far beyond, and even to be felt in the region of the North Cape of Asia."

Mr. Dannenhauer will proceed to the United States as soon as he can travel with safety. Meanwhile those of his shipmates (including Engineer Melville) who were also saved, continue their search for the third boat, from which no tidings have yet been had. In this endeavour they are aided by a relief party of the United States Government under the command of Lieutenant De Long, of the Navy, and by the liberal private enterprise of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, whose expedition is lead by Mr. Jackson.
